Accident Investigation and Reconstruction

“Extremely accessible . . . did an excellent job for us. I would give my highest recommendation.”

■ Sound conclusions based on the facts. What more could you ask from your forensic engineer?

Our transportation forensics staff separates the facts from the opinions in eyewitness reports and depositions, testing the best judgments of people who were at the scene against what we can learn by applying the principles of physics to the physical evidence. Our personal commitment to your investigation gives you answers you can count on when you need them. We tell it like we see it, so you are unlikely to face surprises that leave you feeling cornered in the courtroom.

Where litigation requires presentations, our effective graphics make the case clear. We communicate to juries and non-technical professionals so they understand what really happened and its implications for your case.

Cover and above: On the spot, when you need us. Whether an accident demands instant response or you need events reconstructed years later, our transportation experts get to the facts, so you can make decisions confident that you won't face surprises in litigation.

Our areas of expertise include:

- Accident investigation
- Traffic accident reconstruction
- Tractor-trailer
- Automobile
- Motorcycle
- Bicycle and pedestrian
- Work zone traffic control
- Mechanical failures
- Human factors
- Traffic engineering
- Traffic signal design and operations
- Roadway design
- Engineering testimony
- Courtroom exhibits

We protect you and your clients with sound interpretation of the physical facts, closing out accident investigations fast so you can close your case as quickly as possible, and be prepared for whatever might come in litigation.
